Exceptional event

AMIS is extremely proud to host an IFRS Foundation and IAAER IFRS Teaching Workshop (speakers Prof. Mary Barth and Prof. Donna Street). Details regarding the workshop and the registration for attendance will be announced soon on the conference website.

A number of internationally recognized academics have already confirmed their participation at the congress. Amongst them, we are proud to announce the participation of Prof. Donna Street (University of Dayton, USA, IAAER Director of Research and Educational Activities), Prof. Mary Barth (Stanford University, USA, present member of the IASB and the IAAER's Vice President for the liaison with the IASB, the conference keynote speaker), Prof. David Alexander (University of Birmingham, UK), Prof. Mathew Tsamenyi (University of Birmingham, UK, co-editor of the Journal of Accounting in Emerging Economies, published by Emerald), Prof. Allan Hodgson (University of Queensland, Australia). Confirmations from a number of other esteemed academics are awaited and will be announced soon.

Papers will be assigned to one of several large domains of interest. A maximum number of 4 papers will be included in each session in order to allow time for feedback.

Submission rules

Only full papers written in English can be submitted to the conference. Full papers should be directly submitted electronically on the conference website between March 1 and April 1, 2011. Authors will be informed whether their paper has been accepted for presentation before May 10, 2011. Participants should register before May 25, 2011.

Publication outlets

The papers presented at AMIS 2011 will be made available to conference participants on a CD with ISBN. Should you not agree with this inclusion, please send an email at amis2011@cig.ase.ro. The conference proceedings will be submitted as a CD for review at ISI Conference Proceedings. We are proud to announce that following a very rigorous review process, the AMIS 2010 proceedings (including the papers presented at the conference) has been accepted for inclusion in ISI Conference Proceedings and will appear soon.

The reviewers of the conference along with the editorial board of the Journal of Accounting and Management Information Systems (JAMIS) will select high-quality papers to be considered for publication in JAMIS upon compliance with the reviewers' comments. Also, the conference organizers have extended the collaboration with the esteemed International Journal of Accounting and Information Management (IJAIM) published by Emerald. Several papers presented at AMIS will be selected for a review for and possibly published in IJAIM subject to acceptance by the journal's reviewers.

Conference fees

The conference fee of €100 per participant will include attendance at all conference sessions, the conference bag, all conference materials, lunches and coffee breaks, and participation at the Gala Dinner. A special fee of €50 will be charged to doctoral students. These special fees were established considering the difficult crisis all of us experience nowadays. Nevertheless, the organizing committee is making much effort to attract, like for the last editions, a large number of internationally recognized academics available for support and advice during the conference days. Their participation has to be acknowledged and rewarded appropriately.

Accommodation

Accommodation and transportation are at the charge of conference participants. To meet delegates' needs, special arrangements have been made with Hotels Combined, i.e. the International Conference Support Program. This excellent program is now available for AMIS 2011 to our delegates also, along with delegates attending other international conferences. There is a variety of accommodation options in Bucharest. HotelsCombined.com provides an accommodation price comparison search engine and is offering a 10% rebate all participants attending AMIS 2011.
